Introduction

The Cambridge Centre for Housing and Planning Research, University of Cambridge has produced Parts I and II of the Guide to Local Rents on behalf of the Housing Corporation, using Dataspring, the local housing markets database (see box). These reports are published in response to the need for housing associations to understand the operation of local housing markets when formulating rent policies and setting rents.

Dataspring

To help housing associations carry out local housing market analysis, the Housing Corporation has sponsored the Cambridge Centre for Housing and Planning Research, University of Cambridge, to construct a district level database called Dataspring. This database brings together a range of data on rents, incomes, population and employment. Housing associations and other interested organisations are able to commission analyses of trends, key issues and other research. If you would like more information about Dataspring the website address is www.dataspring.org.uk.

Part I of the guide compares rents charged by housing associations (HAs) by bed size with those of local authorities and the private rented sector (housing benefit cases and local reference rents) at the regional and district level. It also describes average rents charged by HAs on new lettings and relettings.

Part II of the guide describes the pattern of HA rents by bed size at regional, district and individual HA level. At the housing association level, Part II of the guide provides a further breakdown of average rents by assured and secured tenancy and gives details of annual rent increases. This year, for the first time, Part II of the guide also includes target rents, the rent level (at current prices) to be met by the end of the ten-year rent-restructuring implementing period in 2012 (see Rent influencing regime: implementing the rent restructuring framework, Housing Corporation, October 2001).

The Guide does not cover the costs of home ownership. A Dataspring Discussion Paper on home ownership costs was published in 2001: Comparing the Costs of Owner Occupation with RSL Rents: A Geographical Analysis, by Caroline Kiddie.

Definitions

Part I of the guide includes two main tables. Table A1 compares rents charged by HAs, local authorities (LAs) and the private rented sector (PRS) at the regional level. Table A2 makes the same comparison between tenures at the district level. The comparisons do not take account of variations in the quality of properties between different sectors. Average weekly rents are given by bed size — bed-sit (HA and PRS only), one bedroom, two bedroom, three bedroom, four or more bedroom and for all sizes. Where the local authority rent figure is shaded, it is higher than the average HA all stock rent in the local area or region. Where the HA new let and relet rents are shaded, they are higher than the average private sector rent in the local area or region. A key defining the terms used precedes the tables. Further details on data sources and definitions are given in the Appendix.

Private rented sector

Tables A1 and A2 compare housing association, local authority and private sector rents. At the time of publication, data for the private rented sector for the year 2001/02 were unavailable. The figures given have been calculated by assuming an annual increase of 3.3% (the retail price index figure for September 2001) over the previous year. We can make a comparison at the national level with data published by the ODPM from the Survey of English Housing. Table 1 compares data from the Rent Guide (from the Rent Officer Service) with data from the Survey of English Housing. We can expect to see differences in rent levels — the data for private rents from the Rent Officer Service in columns two and three of table 1 relate to housing benefit cases and are thus not a representative cross section of the private rented sector. Accommodation referred to rent officers for housing benefit cases will mostly be towards the lower end of the market, focusing on similar types of households to those accommodated in social housing, whereas data from the Survey of English Housing give average weekly rents of assured and assured shorthold tenancies in the private sector as a whole. These data are grossed from a sample. The average rent derived from local reference rents (the rent officers' estimate of the average level of local rents for all assured lettings in the private rented sector, excluding outliers) given in columns three and four of table 1 give a closer comparison with the SEH data.

The annual rates of increase in average rents based on both housing benefit cases and local reference rents over 1996/97 to 2000/01 are reasonably stable in comparison to those calculated from the Survey of English Housing (SEH) data. The imputed increase of 3.3 percent for 2001/02, whilst low compared to the SEH increase of 9.9 percent, is possibly an overestimate in light of two factors. First, the fact that it is close to or exceeds any of the actual increases shown by the Rent Officer data between 1996/97 and 2000/01. Second, reports on the performance of the private sector in 2001/02, for example, a recent report from the RICS residential lettings survey (October 2002), indicate that the backlog of property on the private sector rental market exerted a downward pressure on rents during the year, although falls in rent were confined to London and the South East while other regions showed modest rises.

If we examine past trends in levels of average rent published in the Rent Guide over the period 1997 to 2001 it becomes apparent that there are regional variations in rent increases both over time and between regions (see table 2). Given such evidence the imputed values in this year's Guide should be regarded as a good but not accurate point of reference.

Regional average rents (table A1)

Table A1 compares housing association, local authority and private sector rents at the regional and national level. In general, HAs provide higher priced accommodation than LAs, but in all regions are lower priced than market sector housing (with the exception of average rents for bedsits under new tenancies in the East Midlands, West Midlands and North East regions). These differences in part reflect variation in age and quality and also location and neighbourhood. They also reflect differences in financing regimes. HA rents on new lettings tend to be higher than the rents of HA relettings.

Within the HA sector, new let rents are generally above those for relet rents in all regions. This is the case for all property types combined. However, there are some exceptions when individual property types are looked at. The largest number of regional exceptions are found for bedsits — the South East, East Midlands, Yorkshire and the Humber and North West regions. These four regions all have higher relet rents than new let rents for bedsits, with bedsits in the East Midlands and Yorkshire and the Humber regions showing the largest difference in rents. The other property types have less regional exceptions and the amounts are also smaller. For one bedroom properties there are two regional exceptions — the East Midlands and Yorkshire and the Humber. Two bedroom properties have exceptions in the South East and East Midlands regions. Three bedroom properties have exceptions in the South East, West Midlands and Yorkshire and the Humber regions. Newlet rents for four or more bedroom properties were higher than relet rents in all regions without exception.

HA new let rents and relet rents are higher than, or, in a few cases, the same as HA all stock gross rents in all regions for the larger property sizes (two bedrooms and larger). However, in the bedsit and one bedroom categories, the reverse is true, the sole exception being the West Midlands which has a gross all stock average rent for bedsits and one bedroom dwellings that is higher than the new lets average (but lower than relets).

Local authority rents are lower than rents in the HA sector and the private rented sector for each property size. In all regions they offer the cheapest accommodation.

The geographical pattern of average HA rents at local level in England for two bedroom properties in 2001/02

Map 1 shows the spatial distribution of average rents (plus service charges eligible for housing benefit) at the local level across all HAs for all two bedroom properties in the HA stock. It focuses on two bedroom properties as an example, as they are the most numerous property size, and can therefore provide more information about the amount by which local authority and HA rents differ from one another across the country. The data combine both flats and houses let on assured and secure tenancies. The map divides the total number of local areas into four groups of equal numbers i.e. quartiles. The top 88 local areas with the highest rents are in the first quartile and the bottom 89 local areas are in the fourth quartile.

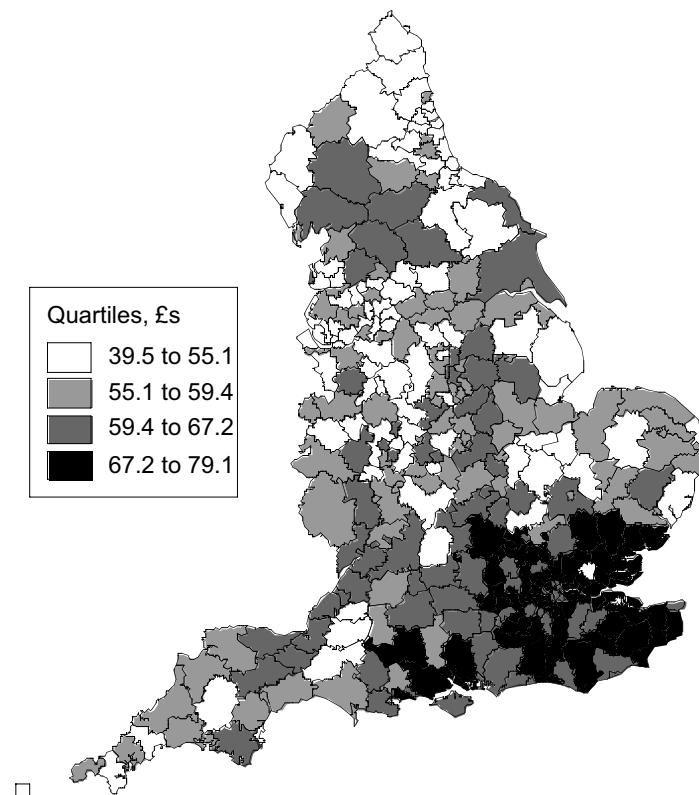

The map shows that the highest rents are in and around London and the South East region. There are also high rents in districts in the East of England region which border London. The conurbations of Leeds and Bradford, Sheffield and Rotherham, Manchester and Newcastle and Tyneside all have average local rents in the lowest quartile.

Table 3 shows the broad pattern of gross rents for two bedroom properties (as these are more representative of HA stock as a whole), with the highest rent levels in London at around £69 per week and the lowest in Merseyside at around £48 per week. This regional pattern is in line with a broad north/south divide in housing costs generally.

| Merseyside               | 48.27             |

Map 1 Average two bedroom property rents for all HAs at the local level across the whole stock

Within regions there are large variations in average gross rent levels at the local, district, level. For example, within London, Lewisham has the lowest average weekly rent at around £62 while Croydon has the highest at around £76, compared with £69, the average weekly rent for the London region. In Merseyside most districts have average weekly rents that are close to the regional average of around £48, but both West Lancashire and Ellesmere Port and Neston have an average of around £59. This is higher than the regional average for all the other regions except London, the South East and East of England. In every region there is significant variation which limits regional generalisations.

The affordability of HA rents in 2001/02

We examined the affordability of HA rents by comparing rent levels in relation to tenant incomes for those households taking up new tenancies in 2001/02. As an illustration, we calculated the rent to income ratio for a two-parent family with two children under sixteen years old, with one parent working (full or part time). In accordance with the rent officer occupancy size criteria for housing benefit purposes we made the assumption that these households live in a two bedroom dwelling. The rent (including service charges eligible for housing benefit) and net income data (including family credit and child benefit) came from the CORE (COntinuous REcording) system for monitoring lettings, and we made estimates of eligibility for housing benefit for the purposes of the analysis.

We used the Housing Corporation's preferred measure for the rent to income ratio:

- Rent to income ratio =  $(\text{Rent} - \text{Housing Benefit}) / \text{Net income}$

This formula produces a ratio that measures the proportion of income a household is spending on rent from its own resources. If a household has the rent paid in full by housing benefit, the ratio will be zero. The ratio will change in response to a change in rent or household income differently depending on whether the household is in receipt of housing benefit (see table 4).

Map 2 Rent to income ratio for two parent families with two children under sixteen years with one parent working

Table 4 Behaviour of the rent to income ratio in response to changes in rent and income

|--------------------------|-----------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| Yes                      | Ratio stays the same              | Ratio Increases                   |
| No                       | Ratio increases                   | Ratio decreases                   |

For households in receipt of housing benefit, the rent may increase but housing benefit pays all of the rent increase and so the ratio does not change. However, if their income increases above a given threshold housing benefit is withdrawn according to the taper. They pay more of the rent from their own pocket and the ratio increases. For households in receipt of housing benefit a rent increase will leave the ratio constant, whilst an increase in income may increase the ratio. However, rent to income ratios may not be consistent in all cases for households on housing benefit.

Map 2 shows the spatial pattern of affordability according to the rent income ratio (expressed as a percentage). The map distinguishes between areas by dividing the average rent to income ratios by district into quartiles. The lightest shading marks the lowest quartile i.e. those 88 districts with the lowest ratios, and the darkest shading marks those with the 87 highest ratios.

The districts with the highest rent to income ratios are concentrated in London, the South East and East of England regions. The highest rent to income ratios (ratios of over 25 percent) are in Epping Forest and Three Rivers in the East of England, Hillingdon, Bromley, Barnet, and Bexley in London, and Portsmouth, Mid Sussex, Wokingham, Dover, Guildford, Runnymede, and Surrey Heath in the South East. Average net incomes (for two-parent families with two children under the age of sixteen years and one working parent) for these local authorities range from £278.59 to £318.50 per week and average housing benefit was zero for most of these districts and not more than around £4 for others.

The districts with the lowest rent to income ratios are concentrated in the East Midlands, the North East and the North West. The lowest rent to income ratios (ratios of less than ten percent) are in Rushcliffe, Rutland, Lincoln, Bolsover, and South Holland in the East Midlands, Alnwick, Redcar and Cleveland, Teesdale, Durham, Middlesborough, and Chester-le-Street in the North East, and Crewe and Nantwich, and Carlisle in the North West. Average net incomes (for two-parent families with two children under the age of sixteen years and one working parent) for these local authorities ranged from £139.75 to £210.00 per week and average housing benefit ranged from around £35 to £63.

In interpreting affordability it is important to distinguish between the proportion of income spent on rent and the extent to which this limits the household's capacity to purchase other necessities. For example, two-parent families with two children under the age of sixteen years with one working parent, living in London and the South East region, spend the largest proportion of their net income on rent. However, other research shows that residual incomes, i.e. that income left over after paying the rent for non-household goods and services, are highest in London and the South East.<sup>1</sup> Thus on average, households in these two regions may spend a higher proportion of their income on rent but they still have more money left after doing so (although the higher cost of living in these regions should also be taken into account). In the data on affordability presented here, the rent ratio has a high positive correlation with income, that is, the higher the average rent ratio the higher the average income tends to be.

Although two-parent families with two children under sixteen years of age with one parent working only constitute a small proportion of all households taking up HA lettings in 2001/02, they serve as an example that illustrates the pattern of affordability across England.

Cross tenure comparison of HA rents for two bedroom properties 2000/01

In this section HA rents are compared with local authority rents in order to see how they vary with respect to property of the same size, in terms of number of bedrooms available in different districts. Increasingly, HAs are looking at rent levels and rent structures in other tenures and localities when drawing up their own rent policies. Private sector rents are also an important comparator for HA rents as, given the provision of housing benefit, they offer real alternatives to HA properties, and ones in which households may have more choice over the quantity and quality of the housing they live in. However, since data for the private rented sector have been imputed for 2001/02, the analysis in this section will focus on the comparison with local authority rents.

Local authority housing offers HA tenants alternative accommodation within the social rented sector, generally at a lower rent. This can be attractive for working households, for whom higher rents mean less residual income if not in receipt of housing benefit, or greater difficulty in avoiding the poverty trap for those in receipt of partial housing benefit. Other research has shown that the higher the amount by which HA rents exceed local authority rents, the greater the likelihood that households will seek accommodation from the local authority rather than the HA sector.<sup>2</sup>

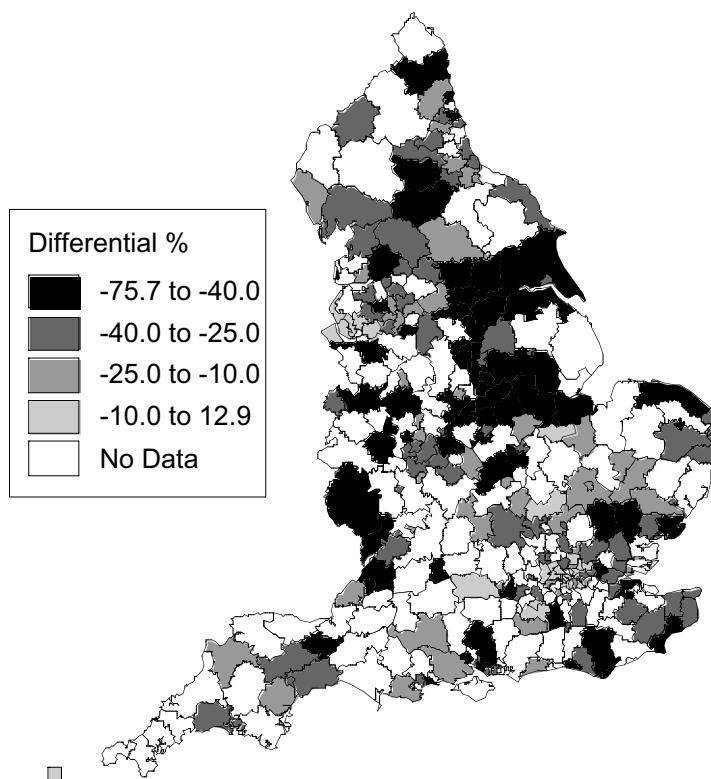

Ignoring rent levels in the other tenures can result in HAs experiencing higher void rates, problems with letting properties, longer periods before lettings are made and difficulties in achieving the objective of mixed and sustainable communities. Cross tenure rent comparisons at the local level are, therefore, an essential tool for HAs to use in their rent setting procedures.

The comparison of HA and local authority rent

In Table A2 local authority rents for each property size are shaded where they exceed HA stock rents for the same property size, in order to highlight areas where local authority rents are higher than HA rents. Map 3 shows the pattern of the differential between average HA rents and local authority rents in 2001/02, focusing on two bedroom properties as an illustration as they are the most numerous HA property size.

Both sectors' rents refer to all two bedroom stock, the local authority data coming from returns made by the local authorities to the ODPM for 1 April 2001 and the HA data coming from the RSR Section 2 Part I as of 31 March 2002. This means there is a twelve-month gap between the dates at which local authority rents are recorded and the date at which HA rents are recorded. However, local authorities change their rents on 1 April and they generally remain constant throughout the year. So the local authority rent taken at 1 April 2001 applied on 31 March 2002. HA rent data include service charges eligible for housing benefit. This is the closest available comparison with local authority rents that may include the cost of services such as communal garden maintenance, children's play areas, lifts, entry phones, rubbish removal and caretakers. One difference between the two is that local authority rents include supported housing whereas HA rents do not.

Of the 354 local areas, 130 show no data in Map 3, either because, in the case of 90 local areas, the local authority stock has been transferred to an HA as part of a large scale voluntary transfer (LSVT), or in the other 40 local areas, data were not returned to the ODPM by the local authorities.

Despite the high proportion of local areas with no data (37%), it is possible to discern patterns across the country. The number of local areas where average local authority rents are higher than average HA rents for two bedroom properties is very small. Local authority average rents are higher than those of HA rents in only seven local authorities for two bedroom properties. Four of these are London boroughs; Brent, Kensington and Chelsea, Tower Hamlets and Westminster. The other three are outside London, one in the South West; the Isles of Scilly, one in Merseyside; Knowsley and one in the East of England region; Peterborough. Capital values are one element in the formula which have a strong influence on local authority rents, which explains in part why they are relatively high in the London boroughs. Generally, HA rents are also relatively high in the London boroughs but very low in Merseyside.

HA rents are less than £5 per week higher than local authority rents in only eight areas:

- The London boroughs of — City of London, Enfield, Hillingdon, Islington, Redbridge, Waltham Forest and Wandsworth; and,
- Merseyside — Wirral;

Map 3 shows clearly that the East Midlands and Yorkshire and the Humber regions have particularly high concentrations of districts where HA rents are significantly different to local authority rents. The Appendix gives a list of districts with the largest differences between the average housing association rents and average local authority rents for two bedroom dwellings.

Conclusion

The key findings from Part I are:

- At the regional level, the figures show clear patterns in average HA rent levels and cross tenure differences. However, there are substantial variations within every region, which significantly qualify this generalisation. High rent regions have some areas with very low rents and vice versa.

- On average, the regional pattern follows a north/south pattern. Rents are highest in London and lowest in Merseyside. In general, average regional rents are highest in London, followed by its surrounding regions; the South East, the East of England region and the South West, with regional rents tending to be lower the further they are north west from London.
- The picture with respect to affordability is similar, with the highest rent and income ratios concentrated in London, the East of England and the South East regions.
- HA rents are higher than local authority rents in most districts across all property types. For two bedroom properties, HA rents exceed local authority rents in all but seven local authority districts, four in London, one in the South West, one in Merseyside and one in the East of England region.

| Net rent   | is the average weekly rent before service charges are applied as of 31 March 2002.   |
| Service charge                                     | is that service charge which is eligible for housing benefit as of 31 March 2002. The service charge is the average for stock that has a service charge.   |
| Gross rent   | is not derived from simply adding the service charge column figure to the net rent column figure. It is derived by recalculating the service charge so that it is the average for all stock (including stock that has no service charge, i.e., has a service charge of zero) and then adding it to the average net rent figure.  |
| n  | gives the total quantity of stock on which rents are reported by HAs.  |

| rents  | is the average weekly gross unfurnished private sector rents referred to the rent officer for housing benefit purposes. It is based on assessments of reasonable market rents of actual properties let to private rented sector tenants in receipt of housing benefit. It includes all service charges where levied, including some charges for cleaning, laundry and gardening that are ineligible for housing benefit. (The averages for 2000/01 have been increased by a factor of 1.033, see 'private rented sector' above).   |
| Private sector local reference rents ("ref. rent") | is the rent officers' estimate of the average level of local rents for all private unfurnished assured lettings in the private rented sector. It is an estimate of the rent that a private landlord might 'reasonably expect to obtain' for an unfurnished dwelling in reasonable repair, let on an assured tenancy during 2000/01. (The averages for 2000/01 have been increased by a factor of 1.033, see 'private rented sector' above). The average rent given at the regional and national levels are weighted by the number of cases at the local level (n).   |
| n  | gives the total number of properties let to private rented sector tenants referred to the rent officer for housing benefit purposes.   |

Table A2

Key to table A2

| Column heading  | Definition   |
|---|--|
| HA— all stock                                      | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• includes assured and secure tenancies</li> <li>• includes general needs sheltered housing</li> <li>• excludes all supported housing</li> <li>• excludes non-self contained properties</li> </ul>  |
| Net rent   | is the average weekly rent before service charges are applied as of 31 March 2002.   |
| Service charge                                     | is that service charge which is eligible for housing benefit as of 31 March 2002. The service charge is the average for stock that has a service charge.   |
| Gross rent   | is not derived from simply adding the service charge column figure to the net rent column figure. It is derived by recalculating the service charge so that it is the average for all stock (including stock that has no service charge, i.e., has a service charge of zero) and then adding it to the average net rent figure.  |
| n  | gives the total quantity of stock on which rents are reported by HAs.  |
| HA—new lettings                                    | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• includes assured tenancies</li> <li>• excludes secure tenancies</li> <li>• excludes all sheltered and supported housing</li> <li>• excludes non-self contained properties</li> </ul>  |
| rent   | is the average weekly gross rent (including service charges eligible for housing benefit) for all new lettings (newly built, rehabilitated or otherwise acquired) made by HAs during the period 1 April 2001 to 31 March 2002.   |
| n  | gives the total number of new lettings made by HAs during the period 1 April 2001 to 31 March 2002.  |
| HA—relettings                                      | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• includes assured tenancies</li> <li>• excludes secure tenancies</li> <li>• excludes all sheltered and supported housing</li> <li>• excludes non-self contained properties</li> </ul>  |
| rent   | is the average weekly gross rent (including service charges eligible for housing benefit) for all relettings (where an existing property has become vacant) made by HAs during the period 1 April 2001 to 31 March 2002.   |
| n  | gives the total number of properties re-let by HAs during the period 1 April 2001 to 31 March 2002.  |
| LA—all stock                                       | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• includes assured and secure tenancies</li> <li>• includes all sheltered housing</li> <li>• includes all supported housing</li> </ul>  |
| rent   | is the average net rent for stock held by a local authority on 1 April 2001. It includes some services such as garden maintenance, children's play areas, lifts, entry phones, portering and rubbish removal, but excludes service charges levied in addition to the net rent.   |
| n  | gives the total quantity of stock held by LAs. 'LSVT' indicates that the LA has transferred the whole of its housing stock to an HA before April 2001.   |
| Private rented sector                              | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• At the time of publication, data for private rented sector for the year 2001/02 were unavailable. The figures given have been calculated by assuming an annual increase of 3.3% (the retail price index figure for September 2001) over the previous year.</li> <li>• includes unfurnished assured short-hold tenancies</li> <li>• excludes secure tenancies</li> <li>• excludes all sheltered housing</li> <li>• excludes all supported housing</li> <li>• data for bedsits includes both self contained and non-self contained properties (a wider definition than that used by HAs)</li> </ul> |
| rents  | is the average weekly gross unfurnished private sector rents referred to the rent officer for housing benefit purposes. It is based on assessments of reasonable market rents of actual properties let to private rented sector tenants in receipt of housing benefit. It includes all service charges where levied, including some charges for cleaning, laundry and gardening that are ineligible for housing benefit. (The averages for 2000/01 have been increased by a factor of 1.033, see 'private rented sector' above).   |
| Private sector local reference rents ("ref. rent") | is the rent officers' estimate of the average level of local rents for all private unfurnished assured lettings in the private rented sector. It is an estimate of the rent that a private landlord might 'reasonably expect to obtain' for an unfurnished dwelling in reasonable repair, let on an assured tenancy during 2000/01. (The averages for 2000/01 have been increased by a factor of 1.033, see 'private rented sector' above). The average rent given at the regional and national levels are weighted by the number of cases at the local level (n).   |
| n  | gives the total number of properties let to private rented sector tenants referred to the rent officer for housing benefit purposes.   |

Data sources and definitions

Housing association rents

Three sets of HA rents are presented:

HA – all stock gives the average gross and net rents and service charges (eligible for housing benefit) for self contained general needs social housing stock owned by HAs on the 31 March 2002. These data:

- include assured and secure general needs self contained social housing tenancies
- include general needs sheltered housing (e.g. category 1 and 2 sheltered housing)
- exclude all supported housing

The data come from the Housing Corporation's Regulatory and Statistical Return (RSR) and cover HA rent levels as at 31 March 2002. Data are included from all HAs owning or managing more than 250 units and/or bedspaces (including shared ownership dwellings) that made a valid return. (A new approach to data collection was adopted in the 2002 RSR. The implications of this for the comparability of rent and service charges data returned in 2002 to that returned in the 2001 RSR are outlined at the end of this appendix (see 'Changes in the basis of housing association rents and service charge data between 2001 and 2002'.)

1 Housing associations calculated the average net rent for each property size category by adding together all of the rents at 31 March 2002 and then dividing this total by the total number of units.

One bedroom example:

$$\frac{\text{Total rent charged for all one-bed properties}}{\text{Total number of one-bed properties}}$$

2 Housing associations calculated the average service charge that was eligible for housing benefit (HB) for each property size category by adding together all of the service charges eligible for HB at 31 March 2002 and then dividing this total by the total number of units that had service charges.

One bedroom example:

$$\frac{\text{Total service charges eligible for HB on all one-bed properties}}{\text{Total number of one-bed properties with service charges eligible for HB}}$$

3 Housing associations calculated the average gross rent for each property size category by adding together all of the net rents and all of the service charges eligible for HB at 31 March 2002 and then dividing this total by the total number of units.

One bedroom example:

$$\frac{(\text{average net rent} \times \text{total stock of all one-bed properties}) + (\text{average service charge} \times \text{total stock of all one-bed properties subject to service charges})}{\text{Total number of one-bed properties}}$$

HA – new lettings is the average gross rent for all new general needs self-contained lettings (newly built, rehabilitated or otherwise acquired) made by HAs during the period 1 April 2001 to 31 March 2002.

HA – relettings is the average weekly gross rent for all relettings (where an existing property has become vacant) of general needs self-contained properties made by HAs during the period 1 April 2001 to 31 March 2002.

These data:

- include assured tenancies
- exclude secure tenancies
- exclude all sheltered housing
- exclude all supported housing

The data come from CORE (COntinuous REcording system for new RSL lettings). Supported housing is not covered by this CORE general needs data set. Sheltered housing rents are available from CORE but are excluded from the data of new and relet rents in this analysis. The RSR and CORE data sets thus differ (HA-all stock includes general needs sheltered housing and secure tenancies).

Local authority rents

The local authority rent data are derived from the returns made to the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM) in the survey of housing rents undertaken annually and show rents across the stock at 1 April 2001. This does mean that there is a twelve-month gap between the dates at which local authority rents are recorded and the date at which HA rents are recorded in the RSR on 31 March of the following year. However, in general, local authorities change their rents on the 1 April and they then remain constant throughout the year, so that the local authority rent taken at 1 April 2001 will apply on 31 March 2002. In contrast HAs may set or change rents at any time of the year. Rents from these two tenures are therefore comparable in terms of time periods on this basis.

The rent data in Part I cover all local authority housing stock, with the exception of hostels and a small number of other dwellings not included in the main classifications. Unlike the HA data, local authority rent data include supported dwellings. This must be taken into account when making comparisons.

The definition of rent in the ODPM survey is of standard rent, excluding service charges for e.g. water rates, central heating, hot water and laundry services. However, the net rents may include some other charges relating to services such as garden maintenance, children's play areas, lifts, entry phones, portering, rubbish removal.

Local authority rent data cannot be provided for every local area. In some cases this is because the local authority has transferred the whole of its housing stock to a housing association under the Large Scale Voluntary Transfer (LSVT) programme. Where the transfer had occurred before April 2001, the local area is marked LSVT under local authority rent in Table A2. In other cases local authorities did not complete the ODPM survey of housing rents.

Private sector rents

Two sets of private sector rents are shown; both based on determinations made by rent officers for housing benefit purposes. The first is the property specific rent (referred to in tables A1 and A2 as 'rent'), which are assessments of reasonable market rents of actual properties let to private rented sector tenants in receipt of housing benefit. The second is the local reference rent (referred to in tables A1 and A2 as 'ref rent'), which is the rent officers' estimate of the average level of local rents for all private assured lettings in the private rented sector excluding outliers.

At the time of publication, data for the private rented sector for the year 2001/02 were unavailable. The figures given have been calculated by assuming an annual increase of 3.3% (the retail price index figure for September 2001) over the previous year (2000/01). Please note that the data published in Part I of the Rent Guide for 2000/01 were based on quarters 2, 3 and 4 of 2000 since data for the first quarter of 2001 were unavailable at the time of publication. The 3.3% increase to derive this year's figures has been based on all four quarters of 2000/01.

The data for 2000/01 were taken from the Department of Transport, Local Government and the Regions (DTLR, now the ODPM) database of rent officer statistics that record rent determinations in housing benefit cases. The data refer to lettings of unfurnished assured short-hold tenancies and exclude cases where rent officers have determined a notional rent because the property is deemed 'over large' for the household. The data for bedsits refer to both self-contained and non-self-contained properties, which is a wider definition than that used by HAs. The data include service charges where levied, including some charges for cleaning, laundry and gardening that are ineligible for housing benefit.

Rent officer statistics categorise lettings by number of rooms rather than number of bedrooms, therefore the following assumptions have been made about the relationship between the number of rooms and the number of bedrooms in a property.

Regions and districts

The ten Housing Corporation investment regions are used in table A1. The local area map of England used in this guide is as of April 1999 which constitutes 354 local areas.

Changes in the basis of housing association rents and service charges data between 2001 and 2002

A new approach to data collection was adopted in the 2002 RSR. This has implications for the comparability of rent and service charges data returned in 2002 with that returned in the 2001 RSR. Although it should be noted that testing of the new approach via a trial RSR indicated that the changes did not make any significant difference to the overall data set, small differences may be observed at the individual housing association level in Part II of the Rent Guide. Changes include:

1 Change in the definition of ownership

The RSR has always requested rent and service charge data for all general needs stock let on assured and secure tenancies that is owned by a housing association, regardless of whether they were actually responsible for the day to day management of that stock.

- Before 2002, a housing association was defined as owning stock if it was held freehold (and they had not granted a lease for more than 30 years (original term) to another organisation) or if it was held on a lease of 30 years or more in duration (original term).
- In 2002 the lease term in the definition of ownership was reduced so that housing associations were required to report rents and service charges on any stock held freehold (where they had not granted a lease for more than 21 years (original term) to another organisation) or on a lease of 21 years (original term).

2 Change to detailed reporting on social housing only

Whereas in earlier years the RSR had requested rent and service charge data for all general needs stock let on assured and secure tenancies, in 2002 these data were requested for general needs social housing stock let on assured and secure tenancies.

While most assured and secure tenancies are social housing, the reader should be aware that some housing associations let some of their non-social housing stock on assured tenancies. This means that prior to 2002 the rent and service charge data included some non-social housing stock. The rent levels may have been higher than mainstream social housing.

Implications for the data

During the development of the new approach to data collection adopted in 2002, the impact on the RSR data set was measured. The results can be found in Definitions of Ownership Phase III: The Shadow RSR (D.Marshall et al, Housing Corporation. 2001). The overall finding was that the change in approach did not make any significant difference to the resulting data and that most differences were actually the result of incorrect reporting under the earlier approach. However, the following movements in figures should be noted:

- Change in the definition of ownership: resulted in an increase in stock numbers because of the reduced lease length but this was offset by the fact that some units also moved to ownership by another organisation for the same reason. The overall increase was therefore small.
- Change to social housing: because of the focus on tenancy types in the reporting of rents and service charges, there was only a small decrease in the total stock for which rents were recorded.
