

Comparison of the RSR data tables published by the Housing Corporation in 2001 and 2002

The approach to data collection in the Housing Corporation's Regulatory and Statistical Return (RSR) changed in 2002. As a result, the set of tables that are published each year from the RSR dataset have also changed. An implication is that the 2002 data tables are not necessarily directly comparable to those of earlier years. Therefore, caution should be exercised when looking at RSR data over time and the data user should also be aware that in some cases it has even been necessary to start a new time-series of data for additional or changed variables.

The aim of this report is to provide a guide on the content and comparability of the RSR 2002 tables with those produced in earlier years. The RSR 2001 tables are used as a reference point for the comparison.

This report should be used in conjunction with the sister report, The New RSR Dataset in 2002: Technical Notes, which together provide a user's guide to the RSR 2002 data and outputs for data users.

The tables within this report include details of what data are shown in each of the RSR tables and brief notes where required to explain any differences. The notes are intended to alert the reader to the fact that they should explore differences in data between years in more detail by using the sister report. Where there is no direct comparison, this has been noted within the table and where the 2002 data creates a new table, this has also been noted.

The New RSR Dataset in 2002: Technical Notes report provides a detailed account of how the RSR dataset in 2001 and 2002 differ by comparing the two returns. Only the main differences are summarised here:

- A fundamental difference that applies to most tables deriving from the RSR 2002, is that there was a change in the definition of ownership in 2002 which meant that stock was included as owned if held freehold or on a lease of 21 years or more (freehold). Previously the test of ownership had been determined by ownership of a freehold or a lease length of 30 years or more in duration (original term). The new definition of ownership applies to all stock types.
- For the first time in 2002, RSLs were requested to provide a breakdown of all stock owned and managed by them upfront in the RSR by type of activity. The main distinction is that between social and non-social housing. From 2002 detailed information is only requested for owned social housing stock whereas detailed reporting had applied to all owned stock in earlier years. As a result, the samples of stock for which detailed information was reported may have changed between years.
- Prior to 2002, stock had been reported on the basis of self-contained units and shared housing bedspaces but the RSR 2002 did not make this distinction. Therefore the term 'units' in the 2002 data generally refers to self-contained units and hostel/shared housing bedspaces combined. Only data for general needs assured and secure rents remain comparable in this context (there may still be changes in data between years resulting from changes to the definition of ownership or restriction of reporting to social housing). In order to continue several time-series beyond 2001, it was necessary to combine units and bedspaces in earlier years to provide a comparable 'unit' total.

- Prior to 2002, a different definition of ownership was applied to reporting on supported housing in ownership and management than that applied to the stock generally – supported housing was owned if held freehold or on a lease of two or more in duration (original term). As a result, information on supported housing formed a sub-dataset to the main RSR data. In 2002, the same definition of ownership applied to all stock owned and managed.
